McKinsey & Company has been provided strategic advice to corporations and other organizations since 1926, when James O. McKinsey, a University of Chicago professor, opened a consulting office in Chicago. Marvin Bower joined the firm in 1933 and became the firm's head after McKinsey left to become chief of Marshall Field & Co. Bower established the firm's core principles and created the practice of management consulting. McKinsey opened its first international office in London in 1959, and has expanded steadily since.
